Cinnamon-banded Kingfisher

It is unusual to visit this region – the Indonesian islands of Sumba, Timor, Flores and Komodo - in the wet season but I figured that conditions might be more congenial with more cloud cover and some rain about cooling things down. As it transpired, we lost very little birding time due to rain, and weather conditions indeed were quite pleasant. Birds were generally quite vocal and we missed just a handful of the 100-odd endemic and regional specialties.

The trip was organised with the aid of Darwin Sumang who I have worked with before and he again provided exceptionally good on-the-ground service. Our transport was comfortable and punctual, the flights were on time, the food was very good and accommodation ranged from excellent to adequate, given the limitations in some areas. See Darwin's website - <http://www.vacationindonesiatours.com/>.

ITINERARY:

4/2 – Our group of Americans and Australians met in Denpasar, Bali. Overnight at Aston Inn Tuban.

5/2 – Our short flight to Waingapu on Sumba was on time and we met with our on convoy of three vehicles. We drove to the KM 91 post near Lewa on the main road which transects the island. From here it was a 1.5km walk to forest patches along a muddy track, where we remained until nightfall. The highlight was a lovely pair of Little Sumba Hawk-Owls seen brilliantly just after dusk. Overnight at the Lewa People's House, our primary base for birding on Sumba.

6/2 – We concentrated on the forest between KM 65 and KM 69 on the main road in Langgalin National Park. The Sumba and regional endemics came thick and fast with highlights including a pair of Sumba Hornbills showing nicely, the often difficult Sumba Flycatcher for some, Sumba Green Pigeon, Apricot-breasted Sunbird and at dusk, a nice Sumba Boobook above the road.

7/2 – An early start for an hour-long drive and a short hike along a muddy trail to reach a forest clearing at Manurara. We had nice views of Red-naped Fruit-Dove, Marigold Lorikeet and Great-billed Parrot here. Afternoon birding around the posts at KM 69 and KM98, where we connected with Wallacean Cuckoo-shrike and Elegant Pitta.

8/2 – We headed back down the road in the morning to forest in the vicinity of KM 98 where we added Metallic Pigeon, Sumba Myzomela and Sumba Jungle-Flycatcher, with nice scope views of Citron-crested Cockatoo, seen very distantly at Manurara. In the afternoon, we transferred to the Hotel Elvin in Waingapu and headed 20km east to an area of sparse grassland. We soon connected with the Sumba Buttonquail, getting good flight views of four individuals flushed. The only one of Sumba's 12 endemics which we missed was Sumba Brown Flycatcher.

9/2 – We flew from Waingapu to Kupang, West Timor, checking into the Kristal Hotel. In the early afternoon we visited rice paddies and scrub edges near Bipolo where we found our first regional specialties including White-bellied Chat, Streak-breasted Honeyeater and Timor Friarbird. Later we visited forest patches at Bariti where we had some good birds including a Cinnamon-banded Kingfisher and a pair of Olive-shouldered Parrots – we were to encounter this increasingly difficult parrot on no less than four occasions – and more Timor specialties including Fawn-breasted Whistler and Timor Blue-Flycatcher.

10/2 – In the morning we searched the remnant lowland rainforest patch at Bipolo, encountering the endemic Timor Stubtail, Plain Gerygone, Timor Figbird, Flame-breasted Sunbird, Black-chested Myzomela and Olive-brown Oriole. We had cracking views of a close Cinnamon-banded Kingfisher, saw more Olive-shouldered Parrots, and were fortunate to find a Pink-headed Imperial-Pigeon, seen briefly by one of the group at Bariti. In the afternoon we transferred to a larger forest patch at Camplong, where we had a fly-over Timor Black-Pigeon.

11/2 - The morning saw us back at Camplong. We saw a Dusky Cuckoo-Dove before calling Buff-banded Thicket-Warblers had us scrambling for views of this skulker; it was another two days before everyone finally saw it. Black-banded Flycatcher and Orange-sided Thrush also showed, and a Streaked (Southern) Boobook was flushed from its day-time roost. In the afternoon we drove to the village of Oenasi, visiting the custodians of a local forest patch, which we birded briefly before moving on to Soe and checking into the Wisma Bhagia Hotel.

12/2 – We drove to 1200m on Gunung Mutis for our visit to the quaint, park-like highland forests of Timor. Yellow-eared Honeyeater, Timor Leaf-Warbler and Olive-headed Lorikeet were plentiful but we dipped on Iris Lorikeet and Timor Imperial-Pigeon - two Timor endemics that are always tricky. Late in the afternoon we had another cultural encounter, this time in Fatumnasi, before birding a forest area below the village.

13/2 – We drove from Soe to the forest patch at Oenasi, where we had Spot-breasted Dark-eye and Thick-billed Flowerpecker, with good views also of Dusky Cuckoo-Dove and Buff-banded Thicket-Warbler. Later we returned to the rice paddies near Bipolo, also visiting nearby shrimp ponds where we finally connected with Five-coloured Munia and Timor Sparrow. We returned to Kupang in the evening.

14/2 – As our original plan to fly to Ruteng was aborted by airline rescheduling, we flew to Labuan Bajo on Flores, driving to the forest patch at Puarlolo. We had our first Flores specialties here including Thick-billed Dark-eye, Crested Dark-eye, Russet-capped Tesia, Flores Minivet, Brown-capped Fantail and Golden-rumped Flowerpecker. It took a while for everyone to get onto Flores Monarch, the local specialty, but it finally showed well right by the road as we were having lunch. We drove to Ruteng, stopping in an area of flowering eucalypts where Flores Lorikeet was abundant. We checked into Catholic Missionary, a convent providing nice accommodation.

15/2 – We drove north to a mid-elevation forest patch near Pagal in the morning where we had brief views of Wallace's Hanging-Parrot and excellent roadside views of White-rumped Kingfisher. In the late afternoon we headed east of Ruteng to Danau Ranamese, a lake in the highland rainforest where our birding was constrained by rain.

16/2 – Our morning was spent in the highland forest of Golo Lusang where we had Flores Jungle-Flycatcher, Yellow-browed Dark-eye and Scaly-crowned Honeyeater. One of the group saw Bare-throated Whistler as the species was unexpectedly taciturn. In the afternoon we returned to Danau Ranamese for fly-over views of Dark-backed Imperial-Pigeon. Nightfall had a pair of Flores Scops-Owl calling vociferously and although very close at times, the birds failed to show; this was the only Flores-Sumbawa endemic that we failed to see.

17/2 – We had some morning birding at Danau Ranamese, failing to connect with the whistler again, before transferring to the lowland centre of Kisol, where the grubby Catholic Seminary proved to be the only disappointing accommodation of the trip. Shortly after dusk in the nearby forest patch we had at least five Moluccan Scops-Owls calling, with one bird showing well.

18/2 – Pre-dawn saw us at the interface between the forest and a village plantation, where we had brief flight views of a pair of Wallace's Scops-Owls, one of which had responded to playback. We connected with Flores Crow and Flores Green Pigeon in the forest before returning to Golo Lusang for a final attempt at Bare-throated Whistler; a male finally showed well, much to the relief of everyone. Late in the day we had a long drive back to Labuan Bajo and the very nice Hotel Bintang Flores.

19/2 – In the morning we birded lowland forest patches at Potawangka, where Flores Crow showed well. Some of the group returned to Potawangka in the afternoon while others went snorkelling off Bidaden Island.

20/2 - An early morning start for a 4-hour boat ride to Komodo Island, where the legendary dragons did not disappoint. Yellow-crested Cockatoo and Green Junglefowl were the birding highlights here.

21/2 – We flew from Labuan Bajo to Denpasar. Overnight again at Aston Inn Tuban.

Common names in the list below generally follow A Guide to the Birds of Wallacea (Coates & Bishop) with taxonomy following The Clements Checklist of Birds of the World except where recent taxonomic changes have been published or publication is imminent. H = Heard. E = Lesser Sundas endemic. EI = Indonesian endemic.
